

Abstract

A vehicle consisting generally of a set of wheel assemblies, a body mounted on such wheel assemblies, a steering system mounted on such body and operatively connected to at least one of the wheel assemblies, a module removably mounted on the body including a support structure and a power plant mounted on the support structure and means for transmitting drive from the power plant to at least one of the wheel assemblies when the module is mounted on the vehicle, including means for disconnecting the power plant from the drive transmitting means.